Remnants of Lost Love

“Yet even now,” declares the LORD, “return to me with all your heart.” (Joel 2:12)

A traveling art exhibit going around the world features very different items, such as: a box made with wooden matches, a small glass horse, a cell phone, a teddy bear holding an “I Love You” heart, and a bread kneading bowl. What all these very different things have in common is that they are all the discarded mementos of broken love affairs.

These once-treasured tokens were given and received by those deeply in love with each other. Since then, these tokens been discarded as unwanted reminders of love gone bad. The traveling exhibit is called The Museum of Broken Relationships.

(www.brokenships.com).

What’s the story behind the small glass horse? A woman wrote describing a vacation that she and her then-husband had taken to Venice, Italy:

“Just before we reached the hotel my husband kissed me on the cheek and gave me a small package. He said: ‘Darling, I love you. I’ll never stop loving you. You are my life.’ I answered: ‘Me too, dear.’ When we entered the room, I opened my gift and saw the little glass horse. Twenty years later, I am divorced. His love disappeared like the wind. I put the glass horse into the box beside my wedding ring and shut it. I say to myself: ‘Don’t cry! Tomorrow is a new day.’”

However, there are also other strange mementos of love gone bad, and of broken relationships. These include baptism certificates, confirmation certificates, and church membership certificates. These all speak about a love affair between the person receiving them, and the Lord Jesus Christ who suffered, died, and rose again for the individuals named on those certificates. At one time, the love affair was mutual and deep. There was an understanding that this loving relationship would last through all of this earthly life and continue on through eternity.

But, the love affair ended—like many do—gradually, with one person slowly losing interest in meeting the Other, until that one person stopped meeting the Other completely; or perhaps half-heartedly, once or twice a year. The once treasured mementos of that once loving relationship (such as the certificates of baptism, confirmation, and church membership) have been forgotten, stashed away in a drawer, or even discarded.

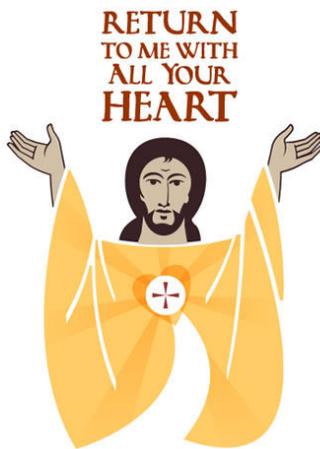

So, there are certain things that these mementos have in common with the mementos left from broken relationships between man and women.

However, the big difference is that with the leftover mementos from the relationship with the Lord Jesus, it’s never He that broke that relationship. He’s not the One who gradually became less and less interested in preserving that relationship. He is always faithful, always offering His perfect love.

When Jesus says, “I’ll never stop loving you” He means it. Return to Him and to His perfect love. Tomorrow is a new day. Don’t let your sins of the past keep you away from your Perfect and True Love.

Blessings,

Pastor Fischer

*“Is not a young mother one of the sweetest sights which life shows us? If she has been beautiful before, does not her present pure joy give a character of refinement and sacredness almost to her beauty, touch her sweet cheeks with fairer blushes, and impart I know not what serene brightness to her eyes?” ~
W. M. Thackeray*

The Day of Pentecost, May 23

Come, Holy Ghost, God and Lord! Be all Thy graces now out poured On each believer's mind and heart; Thy fervent love to them impart. Lord, by the brightness of Thy light, Thou in the faith dost men unite Of every land and every tongue; This to Thy praise, O Lord, our God, be sung. Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

Thou holy Light, Guide Divine, Oh, cause the Word of Life to shine! Teach us to know our God aright And call Him Father with delight. From every error keep us free; Let none but Christ our Master be That we in living faith abide, In Him, our Lord, with all our might confide. Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

Thou holy Fire, Comfort true, Grant us the will Thy work to do And in Thy service to abide; Let trials turn us not aside. Lord, by Thy power prepare each heart And to our weakness strength impart That bravely here we may contend, Through life and death to Thee, our Lord, ascend. Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

Mother's Day—May 9th

God our Creator, we pray:

- for new mothers, coming to terms with new responsibility;
- for expectant mothers, wondering and waiting;
- for those who are tired, stressed or depressed;
- for those who struggle to balance the tasks of work and family;
- for those who are unable to feed their children due to poverty;
- for those whose children have physical, mental or emotional disabilities;
- for those who have children they do not want;
- for those who raise children on their own;
- for those who have lost a child;
- for those who care for the children of others;
- for those whose children have left home;
- and for those whose desire to be a mother has not been fulfilled.

Bless all mothers, that their love may be deep and tender, and that they may lead their children to know and do what is good, living not for themselves alone, but for God and for others.

Loving God,
we thank you for the love of the mothers you have given us,
whose love is so precious that it can never be measured,
whose patience seems to have no end.
May we see your loving hand behind them and guiding them.

We pray for those mothers who fear they will run out of love or time, or patience.
We ask you to bless them with your own special love.
We ask this in the name of Jesus, our brother.

“Mr. St. Clare’s” Tribute to his Mother
From: “Uncle Tom’s Cabin, or Life Among the Lowly”
By Harriet Beecher Stowe

“My mother,” said St. Clare, getting up and walking to a picture at the end of the room, and gazing upward with a face fervent with veneration, “she was divine! Don’t look at me so!—you know what I mean! She probably was of mortal birth; but, as far as ever I could observe, there was no trace of any human weakness or error about her; and everybody that lives to remember her, whether bond or free, servant, acquaintance, relation, all say the same. Why, cousin, that mother has been all that has stood between me and utter unbelief for years. She was a direct embodiment and personification of the New Testament,—a living fact, to be accounted for, and to be accounted for in no other way than by its truth. O, mother! mother!” said St. Clare, clasping his hands, in a sort of transport; and then suddenly checking himself, he came back, and seating himself on an ottoman, he went on:

“I remember just how she used to look, with her pale cheeks, her deep, soft, serious eyes, her white dress,—she always wore white; and I used to think of her whenever I read in Revelation about the saints that were arrayed in fine linen, clean and white. She had a great deal of genius of one sort and another, particularly in music; and she used to sit at her organ, playing fine old majestic music of the church, and singing with a voice more like an angel than a mortal woman; and I would lay my head down on her lap, and cry, and dream, and feel,—oh, immeasurably!—things that I had no language to say!”
